Index

Page numbers in italics refer to figures and tables abstentions, 323–26, 332 achievement: and ascending the grave mound, 248–49, 252; and association, 357–58, 360; commemoration of, 288–89, 296–97, 334–36; and individualism, 212–13, 218–19; and portraiture, 305, 312; and position within hierarchies, 279; recognition of by rulers, 283; and relationship net, 4, 250; and remembrance, 170–72 Additional Zhou documents (Yi Zhouhua): and ancestral territory, 94; and posthumous names, 83, 86, 91, 142 adulthood, 158–72; and courtesy names, 78; and memorization, 371; as stage in “ages of man,” 148, 150–52, 206; value of, 207 advanced years. See old age afterlife, 198–206; bureaucracy, 269; and burial goods, 280; as stage in “ages of man,” 150–52; Western notions of compared with early Chinese, 208; and xiang, 329–30; and youzhi (“is sentient”), 398n28. See also lifeline: ascending age, 2–4, 144–208; calculation of, 155; fivefold structure of, 150–52; and gender, 235, 245; and grades, 160, 166, 177, 206; of liability, 154; and reverence, 174–76; veneration of, 180. See also adulthood; afterlife; “ages of man”; childhood; death: age of “ages of man,” 146–53, 172, 206–8, 367; Western, 421n28 Ai (Emperor): name of, 88; and possession of empire, 219; and recitation, 29, 46; and taking leave for mourning purposes, 190

An (Emperor), 18, 193, 244 Analects: on ming (posthumous name), 82; on names, 86; on sacrifice, 117–18; virtue categories in, 352–53. See also education: role of texts in Analysis of the salt and iron monopolies (Yantielun): on conversion, 333; on names, 65; on recitation and ethics, 40, 52; on text chanters, 15–16 ancestors, 2–3, 346–47; and achievements of the living, 218, 246–47; and bronze vessels, 279, 283–84; and counterpart (pei), 126–29, 131, 200 (see also counterpart [pei]); and disfiguration, 254–55; displeased, 100; fading upward, 198, 205–7; and five phase cosmology, 140–41; in modern Western religions compared with early China, 447n78; as mountains, 136; and names, 59, 74; and new wives, 52; and portraiture, 313, 344; removal from sacrificial schedules, 86; report to, 248; Roman cult of, 62; and stelae, 302–3; and tablet positioning, 277; and taboos, 76; and territory, 95–100, 104, 105–6, 110–12; and tools of remembrance, 272. See also lifeline (ascending) ancestral hall. See hall (ancestral) ancestral land. See under land ancestral mound, ascent of. See asent of the grave mound (shangzhi) Aristotle, 61; on age, 146, 419n9; on reminiscence, 321 ascent of the grave mound (shangzhi): and affirmation of ties to living and dead, 304; codification of, 248–49; denial of, 252–55; and the knot-like self, 261 association, 319–21, 349–61; and stele inscriptions 359–61; and U.S. obituaries, 369–70
Augustine, 147, 382, 382n124
Ban Gu: chanting of, 23; “Chart of people past and present,” 353–55, 361; and cosmological pattern, 134–35; on Emperor Xuan’s portrait gallery, 312; on Gaozu’s oath, 397; on learning, 27, 28–29, 38, 175; on mourning obligations, 190; on recitation, 53–54; recitation of his works, 22; on ritual, 326; on upheavals at the end of the Wang Mang interregnum, 236
Ban Zhao, 173, 237, 240 Beihai, 192, 288, 305
beneficence: and filial respect, 246; and life span, 157–58, 228, 340; and ritual, 216, 226–27
Bible, 62, 151
Biographies of exemplary women (Lienüzhuan):
and the changing of the text’s meaning, 50; on Lady Ban, 315; on the life of Houji, 59; on splicing of relationship nets, 236–37; virtue categories in, 333
birchleaf pear, 342–44, 343, 350–372 birth: date of, Western compared with early Chinese, 113; and growth of relationship net, 231; of lineage, 227; miraculous, 124–25, 138;
and names, 68, 105; and reincarnation, 112; and timeline, 60, 150, 151. See also under Song canon: “Shengmin” (Birth of our people) Birth of our people. See under Songs canon body: and abstinences, 325; and aging, 144–45; damage to, 252–53; at death, 111, 113, 181, 185 bronze, 280–81; bells, 336; miniaturized, 279; utesils, 155; vessels. See also vessels (bronze) Buddhism, 48, 198, 260
burial, 195; of children, 154–55; delayed, 181–82, 207
Cai Yong: on ancestral dance, 289; on ascent of the grave mound, 248; on death, 185;
on exaggeration of virtue, 171, 347–48, 364; kidnapping of his daughter, 42; on portraiture, 306; on posthumous names, 84, 142; on seal script, 301 calling cards, 268–71, 315; and stele, 301
Canon on the grand mystery (T'aihsuanjing), 145, 222
Cao Cao, 42–43, 89, 299 Cao Zhi, 209–10, 259–60 cemetery, 266–68, 292–304. See also under shrines
Ceremonies and rituals (Yili): on courtesy names 77–78, 81; on mourning for children, 158; on posthumous names, 83; prenuptial dialogue in, 214–16, 238; on reduction of individual agency, 218
ceremony: and bronze vessels, 278; capping, 77–78, 217–18, 227; justification of, 205; naming, 69; for recognition of elderly, 174 Changes canon (Yijing): on hexagrams, 345; list of rulers in, 351; on music, 127; on xiang, 267, 328–29. See also education: role of texts in chant: and remembrance, 337; and women, 313.
See also education: role of texts in Chen Shi: and chanting, 32; name bestowal of, 89–90; portraiture for family members of,
306; stele for, 191–92, 337; and xiang, 330 Cheng (Emperor): and Ban Gu, 249; and portraiture, 309, 313; and recitation, 45–46; his sacrifice to strange beings, 118 Cheng (King), 109, 289, 309, 350–51 child: mourning of, 155–57; orphaned, 183; value of, 154, 231–32. See also childhood childhood, 151–58, 195, 220; cultural value of, 206–7. See also child
Christianity, 61–62, 147, 154, 202, 440n249
Chu Shaosun: on the birth of Houji, 123–26;
on names, 188–89; recitation of, 38, 42 Chu lyrics (Chuci), 327 clothing (mourning), 158, 181
Confucius: association with, 360–63; in Ban Gu’s ninefold hierarchy, 135; on the birchleaf pear, 343–44; on blood and qi, 144, 146; on burial, 113; on burial figures, 329–30; death of, 89, 335; dedication of vessels to, 280; on distance, 203; on failing in government, 36; and foundation of the Han’s system of government, 273–74; and graves, 294; images of, 303, 311; on individual agency, 216; on learning, 14, 21; on leaving behind a name, 82; lineage of, 97; and meat distribution, 285; and Mozi, 10; on recitation, 38; on sacrifice, 117–19; and textual conversion, 345; and virtue-centered groupings, 331–33; and visual remembering, 310; on Wang Yi’s death rituals, 156
conversion, 319–21, 333–48, 356, 361–65 counterpart (pei), 126–32; and ancestral ascent, 200; Houji as, 239; and women, 241 courtesy name (zi), 3, 23, 65–68, 77–82; and capping ceremony, 217; change of, 90; example of, 142; and five phases, 137–39; and sibling rank, 81–82, 91, 366–67 Dao, 29–30; and food offerings, 287; and learning, 17; and longevity, 53; and recitation, 35–36, 40–42; and xiang, 332 Daoism, 14, 69, 260
death, 185; age of, 181–98; and “ages of man,” 150–52; and dependence, 224; and distance from home, 113–14, 146; human aversion to, 323; and names, 82; premature, 156–58, 172, 209, 228; and the self, 3; transformation after, 110, 144
dependence (zi), 3, 223–31; and ancestral shrines, 273; and cemetery shrines, 304;
and death, 230; and individualism, 261–62; restoration of, 225; and tablets, 275; and the unremembered dead, 296; and women, 239 Earl of Shao. See Shao, Earl of earth altar, 93–97, 103–4 education: and childhood, 151; and dance, 289; and oral performative culture, 314; role of texts in, 5–35. See also instructional model elderly. See old age family: and ancestral sacrifice, 271; ancient Greek, 210–11; and cemeteries, 294–97; competition among, 243; divine force of, 45518; duty to, 195; and grades, 158; and land, 94, 110–12; rifts in, 235; in Roman imagination, 319
Filial piety canon, 19; on the body, 220, 232; on counterpart (pei), 128, 130; in education, 130, 370; on filial piety, 178; recitation of, 35, 48, 175, 194; and territory, 103. See also education:
role of texts in five phases, 100–102, 133–40; and positioning of the Five lords, 131; and zheng, 124 grades (jue), 158–66, 177, 269; and inscriptions, 170–72; of rulers, ascending, 199 grave mound, ascent of. See ascent of the grave mound
graves: grouping of, 294; inscriptions, 158, 206; and technological progress, 39619; and territory, 102, 110–12, 114, 196. See also cemetery
Guangwu (Emperor): as counterpart, 131–32;
and posthumous names, 90; and recitation, 47; and summoning of hun soul, 114 hall (ancestral): and capping ceremony, 77; and marriage, 216; as microcosm, 253; and music, 346, 461112
Hall of Brilliance, 128, 130–32
Han documents (Hanshu): on abstentions, 190; biography of Yang Xiong, 106; biography of Yin Zixin of Julu, 341; on chanting, 32–33; “Chart of people past and present,” 333–54; charts on Western Han fief holders, 255; on dances, 299; on destruction of earth altars, 93; on Han learning, 18; on latecomers to education, 25; on learning, 28; on counterpart (pei), 129; on portraiture, 307; on recitation examinations, 45
Han Feizi, 16, 110, 308, 326 heaven: and bloodlines, 126; and bronze vessels, 282; and cosmic order, 156–57, 173; and dependence, 239; and distance, 200, 204; and earth, 119, 140, 204, 216, 354; and the earth altar, 93; and five-phase cosmology,156–37; looking up to, 355; and counterpart (pei), 127–32; punishment for opposing, 259; return of qi to, 113; Western concept of, 152, 208 Heng Fang, 192–93, 335–36, 359
Historical documents, 12, 18
Historical records (Shiji): on buying and selling of grades, 164; on King Wu, 218; on music, 324; on recitation, 25; on sanzu punishment, 256; on surnames, 105, 139
Huainanzi, 134; on abstentions, 325; on age veneration, 173, 180; on archiving, 274; on chanting, 33; on distance, 204; on geography, 108; on ritual conformity, 235; on a sacrificial goblet, 281; on the sage, 129; on scholars, 38; on taboos, 72; on the three-year mourning period, 189; on xiang, 327 Huan (Emperor), 56, 193, 298 identity, 2–4: of ancestor, 200, 275; of the author, 123; of deceased child, 156; and names, 59, 63, 68; of nobles, 105; posthumous, 198, 302, 296; and posthumous names, 82, 88–89; standardization of, 83; and surnames, 115; twentieth-century discourse on, 261; Western compared with early Chinese, 211–2, 462128. See also self, the imitation, 16, 54, 188 infants: abandonment of, 58–59, 124; death of, 209, 260; naming of, 69–70, 91, 154–55; value of, 153
instructional model, 36–39, 180
Jiang Yuan (mother of Houji), 58, 214–25, 229, 239, 273
Jing (Emperor): and dance, 290; and posthumous names, 84; and recitation, 36
Jing Yun, 1–4, 57, 167; stele of, 317–18, 321, 366–67
land: ancestral, 92–98, 102–4; ownership of, 110–14; and surname, 107–8. See also return; territory
Laozi: chanting of, 31, 48; in education, 20; and reduction, 332; on smiling, 69 Later Han documents (Hou Hanshu): on cemetery shrines, 266; on entry into officialdom, 47; on exceptional youths, 11; on excessive mourning, 246; on grade promotions, 164; on mastery of texts, 18, 23, 25, 28; on textual devotion, 33–34; on yang du, 358

Index

Li Daoyuan, 107, 296, 303, 311 lifeline (ascending), 172, 205, 207 literacy, 5–7, 9, 18, 26
Liu He: as negative example, 41–42, 219, 255–56, 370
Liu Qing, 242–44, 248
Liu Shao, 330, 354–55, 361
Liu Xin, 75, 202–3, 326
“lord-father analogy,” 179–80
Lu Jia, 11, 40, 112, 281 marriage, 3; and age, 235, 448990; and counterpart (pei), 241; and father-son relationship, 242; proposal of, 214–16; and self-mutilation, 52; as union of lineages, 233, 236–38, 245. See also relationship nets: splicing of; women meat, 174–75, 284–86 memory, public. See public memory Mencius: on conversion, 333; on having no children, 254; in hierarchy, 135; mistakes of, 9; on recitation, 40, 42, 52
Ming (Emperor), 131–32, 143, 174, 190–91
Mohism, 14, 55, 235–37, 289
Monthly ordinances of the four classes of people (Sinmin yueling): on education, 20–21, 22, 25–26, 27; on sacrifice, 121, 248, 271, 273, 284, 292 mourning: for children, 154–55, 158; of commoners, 195; criticism of, 14; duties of, 120; for elderly, 207; impact on career, 169, 192–94; proxy in, 234; as a public matter, 317, 358; and society formation, 221; three-year period of, 116, 186–95; variation in duration of, 236. See also clothing: mourning music, 287–92; and education, 25; and lineage narratives, 6; and counterpart (pei), 127; and recitation, 32; and reduction, 33–24; and remembrance, 265, 337–38; and surname pronunciation, 137; and xiang, 266–67 mutual responsibility, 250–52, 257, 260, 285 myriad things, 119, 123, 134–37 names, 2–5, 38–143, 366–70; and divination, 238; and memory, 67; as a tool to establish relative positions between people, 78–82; as a tool to position the self, 65, 68; trafficking of, 268–72, 315; types of, 65–68; Western compared with Chinese, 141, 366, 4021922; of women, 240–41; and xiang, 327–29. See also courtesy name (zi), personal name (ming), posthumous name (shi), surname (xing) old age, 144–46, 148–51, 172–81; and afterlife, 208. See also under veneration personal name (ming), 69–77; and calling cards, 269–70; changing of, 90; in contrast to courtesy name, 78–82; example of, 142; of women, 240–41. See also names: types of; taboo Pindar, 320, 338
Plato, 61, 213–14, 378776 portraiture, commemorative, 263, 266–68, 305–15; Roman, 465169; as xiang, 267 posthumous name (shi), 3, 82–91; admonishing, 252; archiving of, 274; example of, 142; and tablets, 276; of women, 241. See also names: types of progenitor, 115–33; as counterpart (pei), 200 public memory, 2–5, 56, 262; and age, 152; and association, 349–61; its benchmarks, 334–36, 347–48; exit from, 296; and grades, 161; and a Greco-Roman understanding of remembrance, 321; and music, 292; and names, 68, 87, 92, 115, 123, 138, 141, 167; and portraiture, 313; and reduction, 333; and stelae, 302; and text, 9, 54; and time, 61; in the U.S., 369–70; and the “void” 199–200 qi, 67, 115–18; and age, 144–46; and ancestor, 140; and death, 111, 113; and dependence, 262; and earth altar, 93; and five-phase cosmology, 134–38; and human personality, 354; malignant, 227–29; and punishment, 259; and sentence, 187 quintessence, 183–84, 296 rank, 3, 262; and alcohol distribution, 284; and ancestral offerings, 247, 258; bestowal of, 217, 222; of counterpart (pei), 128; as distinct from grades, 159, 172; inheritance of, 183; and portraiture, 313, 414267; and women, 403100. See also grades (jue) reading, 30–31
recitation: in education, 5–57; and conversion, 333, 336–38 reduction, 319, 321–33; and association, 349, 356; and memory, 365; and xiang, 365 relationship nets, 65–67; 223–231; and ancestral shrines, 274; and Buddhism, 260; and cemeteries, 294–95; dragging down on, 250–60; and lineage, 115–16; and mourning duty, 192; and posthumous names, 82–91; and property, 406–70146; pulling up on, 243–50; and the self, 180–81, 214, 220; and souvenirs, 267–68; splicing of, 231–45; and stelae, 302–3; and surnames, 123–24; and taboo observance, 71, 75–77; territorial, 108 religion, 221; and bureaucracy, 204; and community, 254; in contrast to magic, 4717315; Durkheim, Emile on, 444442; and land, 40771146; Weber, Max on, 385163 remembrance: birchleaf pear as object of, 344; of deceased children, 116–8; 206; gradations of, 115, 244, 250; and individualism, 2; inscriber’s role in, 345; intangible tools of, 317–65; of lineage progenitor, 104; name as tool of, 71, 82–84, 89; of nonkin, 191; role in manuscript culture, 6; role of xiang in, 266–67; tangible tools of, 4, 267–316, 359–61; territory and, 96, 98–99; of women, 241, 243–44 return: to fulfill mourning obligations, 190; as meaning gui (“a place to return”), 111, 223–25, 239, 261, 295; in old age, 112–13, 146, 173 reverence: and age, 153, 174; and the birchleaf pear, 344; and distance, 203, 326; in meaning of “lineage shrine,” 266; role of music in, 324; and tablet positioning, 201; through substitution, 224; toward women, 243. See also veneration ritual: and cosmology, 134–16; to cut off lineage, 256; inscription and death, 114; and gender, 43; and kinship, 230–31; marriage, 214–15; and mourning, 187–88, 222; and net splicing, 236; and reduction, 322–26, 331–33, 363; and the self, 4, 68, 212, 216–18; shift in, 278–79; three roots of, 118; of tombstones, 319; and Wang Mang, 19. See also mourning Ritual records (Liji): on age, 174; on ancestral tablets, 95–96; on the body, 220; on bronze vessels, 282–84, 298, 369; on burial, 182, 242; on chanting, 23; on commoners conducting sacrifice, 273; on courtesy names, 77–78, 81; on death ritual, 221; on disfiguration, 233; on the earth altar, 93; on filial respect, 178, 246–47; on individual agency, 216–18; on Ji Zha, 113; justification of ceremony, 205; on leaving, 103; on lineage ritual, 230; list of socially locative parameters, 1; on marriage, 216, 238–39; “Meaning of sacrifices,” 110; on meat distribution, 160; on name taboo, 72, 74; on naming, 69–70, 268; on posthumous names, 83–84; on preservation of remnant lineages, 97; on reverence, 203; on ritual as corrective, 323–24, 326; on sacrifice to Houji, 128–139; on sentence, 187; on souvenirs, 314; on study, 180; use of in association, 89; on Wang Yi, 156 Ritual records of Dai the elder (Da Dai liji): on the body, 220; on crime and punishment, 259; on name trafficking, 269; on counterpart (pei), 127; on recitation, 22; on the three roots of ritual, 118 sacrifice: and abstentions, 343; collective, 200; counter to norm, 277; and disfigurement, 253; and the earth altar, 93–103; and five phases, 134; frequency of, 202–3, 202; and imitation, 196, 4377223; ineffective, 113; and lineage exclusivity, 117–21; location of, 273; and marriage, 233, 235–38; as means of generating tangible ties across generations, 279; and meat, 285–87; and counterpart (pei), 127–32; and place of return, 225; prolonging of, 75; to recent ancestors, 185–86; and status of sacrificer, 199, 250; tangibility of, 232 self, the, 2–4; and age, 144, 152; Buddhism, 260; and collective memory, 349; definition of, 179–81; diminishment of, 216–19, 221; and kinship, 209–10, 213; knot-like, 246, 261, 263, 302, 365, 368, 444442; and names, 65–9, 123–24, 141; posthumous, 88, 301–2; and mourning, 48; transformation of, 40–47; Western notions of compared with early Chinese, 70, 212–13; and xiang, 315 Shao, Earl of, 342–44, 372 shrines: and accumulation of written texts, 7, 274, 315; and art, 311; cemetery, 303–4; and children, 153; collapse of, 295; construction and maintenance of, 181; location of, 273; and music, 324; and naming, 70, 76; and pictorial depiction, 342–44; request for closure of, 119; and ritual, 200–3, 216–18, 238; service to, 223, 229, 233; and territory, 93–97, 103–4; and tools of remembrance, 272–92; and xiang, 266 Sima Qian: on association, 356; biography of Zheng Danghi, 79–80; on the birth of Houji, 59; castration of, 254–55; and chanting, 21, 31; on Confucian disciples, 361; on Confucius, 310; as exemplar of literary expression, 355; on Han Xin, 258, 357–58; on manuscript culture, 53–54; on meat distribution, 285–86; on the mutual responsibility system, 250; on the prescriptive ritual canon, 223; on shared burials, 241; on taboo violation, 75–76; and travel, 27; treatise on the Xiongnu people, 173; virtue list of, 352–53 situatedness, 393–94;3 concerning age, 146–50; concerning individualism, 210–14, 442; concerning remembering the dead, 318–21, 362; concerning souvenirs, 264–67; concerning time, 60–65; and names, 366

Songs canon: allusion to, 89, 229, 341–42; “Bigong” (The remote temple), 128–29; cited, 139; “The birchleaf pear,” 343, 372; and bronze vessels, 284; burning of, 54; and discussion of, 174; “The immaculate shrine,” 181, 289; and inscription, 316–37, 345–46; memorization and recitation of, 370; music, 323; quoted, 50, 52, 247, 351–52; “The remote temple,” 273; “Shengmin” (Birth of our people), 38, 124, 125, 127, 229, 239; storage of, 52; used to justify joint burial, 242; “Xiawu” (Descendants continue in the footsteps), 126–27. See also education: role of texts in spirits: as agents of physical diminishment, 145; cut off from lineages, 256–57; dependence of, 224–26, 229, 275; and distance, 203; driving away, 235; encounter with, 310; exorcism of, 197; receiving sacrifice, 117–18, 120; rights of to labeled food, 299; of the Sanglin performance, 288; shaming of, 238; taking shape, 125; value of the self relative to, 218–19 splicing, of relationship nets. See under relationship nets

Spring and Autumn annals of Wu and Yue, 94, 355

Strategies of the Warring States (Zhan guoce), 22, 37, 78 surname (xing), 3, 92–115; and borderland peoples, 287; and calling cards, 270; denoting geographic origins, 262, 367; and five-phase cosmology, 156–40; and genealogy, 123–24; and marriage, 230, 240. See also names: types of tablets, 273–78; attendant of, 350; and death, 186; and names, 66, 271–72; positioning of, 200–203, 315; and the self, 263, 268; as “spirit seat,” 457; and territoriality, 95–96, 294, 408; of women, 241; and xiang, 266 taboo, 3, 65, 69–77, 91; and change of name, 170; in presence of emperor, 79; and qi continuity, 116; and the Xiongnu, 106 Tairen (mother of King Wen), 227, 229, 360, 362

Tai Si (mother of King Wu), 227, 229, 360 territory: and ancestral worship, 93–96, 179; and remembrance, 67; and surnames, 92, 106, 139 time: between death and burial, 182; bifurcated, 139; and chronology, 120–22, 397; cyclic, 395–96; disjointed, 157; and five phases, 101; and memory, 161; and portraiture, 307; and remembrance region, 98; sacred, 323, 395–96; Western notions of compared with Chinese, 60–65, 141, 395; tomb mound, ascent of. See as of grave mound veneration: of age, 160, 172–74, 178–80, 370; tools of, 166. See also reverence vessels (bronze), 278–84, 315; and stone stelae, 297–98

Wang Chong: on the Analects, 20; on ascent of the grave mound, 252; on calamity and punishment, 259–60; and conversion, 333, 347, 362, 364; criticism of portraiture, 308–9, 312–13; on death and the body, 111; on distance, 204; on dynastic labels, 104; on the education of his contemporaries, 47; on figures, 330; on grades (jue), 159; on his own education, 27, 43; on names and the five phases, 117–38; on posthumous names, 84–85,
Index

87; on recitation, 36; and ritual vessels, 284; on scholars and texts, 8–9, 21, 29, 40–41, 52; on tablets, 275
Wang Fu, 105, 117, 138–40
Wang Mang: bestowal of posthumous name, 87; and cemeteries, 294; codifications of, 19–20, 27; compositions of, 46–47; and earth altars, 93; and the Filial piety canon, 130; and mourning, 190, 234; and pattern unity, 134; and promotions, 247–48; and remembrance regions, 98–99, 102; and sacrifices, 235; and sanzu punishment, 258–59
Wen (Emperor): and the Lords on High, 130, 132; maligning of, 259; image of, 310 White Tiger Hall discussion (Baihuatong): on counterpart (pei), 128–29; on courtesy names, 77–78; on dance, 289; on double bows, 270–71; on the earth altar, 93–95; on exclusion from sacrifices, 253; on infants, 69; on name usage, 80; on posthumous names, 85; on rank, 247; on the self, 217–19; on surnames, 137; on tablets, 275; on taboos, 74; on the "threelfold dispensation" (santong), 101; on xiang, 266; on yin and yang, 239–40
Wen (king): as counterpart to the Lords on High, 130, 132; maligning of, 259; image of, 310

Xianyu Huang, stele of, 167–72, 168, 206, 301–2, 360–62, 369
Xu Gan, 44, 188, 194, 275
Xuan (Emperor): and the Analects, 20; bestowal of grades by, 160–61; and the Filial piety canon, 19; and name usage, 79; portrait gallery of, 312, 314, 359; and portraiture, 309
Xuan (king), 335–36, 339–40
Xunzi: and counterpart (pei), 129; on death and mourning, 181–82, 188, 196, 221; and education, 16–18, 21, 51; in hierarchy, 135; on instructional models, 36–37; on recitation, 22, 29, 40; on ritual, 323; on social function of lineage rituals, 230, 234; and xiang, 329

yang, 93; and calamity, 259; counterpart to, 130–31; and discontinuity of the living and the dead, 196; and marriage, 240; in old age, 145; Spring as height of, 100 Yang Xiong: and association, 316–57, 361; and conversion, 333; on portraiture, 308; on preservation of forms, 332; on veneration of the old, 180 yi, 93; and calamity, 259; as complement to earth, 130–31; and discontinuity of the living and the dead, 196; and marriage, 239–40; in old age, 145; and postmortem existence, 197, 332; and tetragram ju, 222 Ying Shao: and ascent of grave mound, 252; and dependence vocabulary, 223–24; and pattern unity, 135–36; on posthumous names, 91; on surnames, 105, 139 yinyang, 100, 196, 409n87

Zuo commentary: on archiving, 274; and cemeteries, 294; on chanting, 31–32; on courtesy names, 77; on dance, 289; on disfiguration, 232–53; on the ghost Boyou, 99, 224–25; on invocators, 45; on King Jing, 340; on meat distribution, 285; on proper inscriptions for bronze bells, 336; recitation of, 43; on relationship to land, 109, 117; on ritual, 322; on sacrifice, 118–20, 201; on surnames, 105–6, 139; on Wang Yi, 156; and xiang, 328