Contents

Maps, Plates and Figures, and Tables xi
Acknowledgments xiii
Note to the Reader xix

Introduction 1

Part I: Mourning Laws
The Pre-Tokugawa Foundation and Tokugawa Political Implications

1 Pre-Tokugawa Mourning Laws 21
   The Origins: The Yōrō Code and Native Religious Traditions 22
   “Shinto” or “Jindo”: What’s in the Name? 29
   The Mourning and Abstention Laws of the Shinto Shrines 35
   Observance of Mourning under the Yōrō Code and Shrine Rules: A Sampler 41

2 The Tokugawa Mourning Edicts 44
   The Early Tokugawa Attempts at a Mourning Edict 44
   Tokugawa Tsunayoshi and His Edict on Mourning and Abstention 55

3 Mourning and the Shogun’s Legitimacy 66
   Shogun Tsunayoshi’s Personal Stake 67
   The Shogun’s Inheritance and Succession 77
   The Mystery of Rebirth 82
   Patriarchal Sacraments 84
   Imperial Dispensation 92
   The Tokugawa Shogun’s Many Faces of Legitimacy 95

4 Mourning and the Daimyo Houses 103
   Implementation of the Mourning Edicts in the Daimyo Houses 104
   Local Records 108
Succession in the Daimyo Houses 111
- The Satake House and the Shogunate’s Specifications 112
- Succession in the House of Mōri 117
- The Story of the Shimazu House 118
- The Mourning Edict and the Demography of the Daimyo Houses 121

The Shogun’s Stick 123
- The Dead Man Talking 126
- Center versus Periphery 127

The Mourning Edict and the Populace 135
- Notification of the Mourning Edict among Edo’s Townsfolk 137
- Relatives of Abstention and Social Control 140
- Guilt by Affinity 145
- Filth, the Sacred Sphere, and Leaves of Absence 148
- The Practices of Commoners in Mourning and Abstention 152

Portraits of Men and Women in Mourning 159
- Mourning in the Life and Death of Umezu Masakage (1581–1633) 160
- The Shoguns’ Wives and Concubines 164
- Lady Yō: Daimyo’s Daughter, Daimyo’s Wife (1737–62) 169
- The Men and Women of the Shimazu House 174
- Kamata Masazumi, the Shimazu Vassal (1816–58) 177
- In Memoriam 181

Part II: Public Mourning in Edo and the Daimyo Domains

Public Mourning of State Personages 185
- The Rites of Public Mourning 186
- Quiet in Edo 192
- The Shogunate’s Accommodation 204
- The Quiet for the Dead, the Quiet for the Living 209

Public Mourning in the Daimyo Domains 223
- Public Mourning in Akita 224
  - Mourning the Satake 224
  - The Tokugawa House in Akita 229
  - The Life of Akita’s Populace under Prohibition 231
  - The Domain’s Accommodative Approach 235
Contents

Silence in Chōshū 238

Public Mourning for the Tokugawa House 238

Co-opting the House of Mōri 241

The Transmission of Suspension Orders 246

Silence in Four Corners 254

The Experience of an Itinerant Singer-Storyteller 257

Intradomain Public Mourning as Supradomain Allegiance 265

9 Public Mourning and the Imperial Family 268

The Imperial Family in the Shogunate’s Suspension Orders 268

The Imperial Family in Akita 273

The Imperial Family in Chōshū 280

The Imperial Family in Kyoto 287

The Emperor, the Shogun, the Daimyo, and the People 289

10 Public Mourning in Bakumatsu Politics 297

The Deaths of Shoguns Ieyoshi and Iesada 298

Mourning in the Provinces 305

The Reversal of Fortune for “the Above” 309

Appeasement and New Protocols 309

The Deaths of Shogun Iemochi and Emperor Kōmei 312

The Reversal of Fortune for “the Below” 321

“The Below” in Edo 321

Out in Akita 325

War and Public Mourning in Chōshū 328

Shogun Yoshinobu’s Grief 332

Mourning and Missed Opportunities 334

Part III: Mourning in the Meiji Period

11 Government by Mourning in the Meiji Period 341

The Meiji Restoration 341

The State of the Mourning Laws under the New Regime 343

Connections to Select Codes 348

Imperial Holy Days 353

Personal Holy Days 358

The Politics and Diplomacy of Royal Deaths 363

The Last Chapter of the Tokugawa Mourning Edict 367

Conclusion 372
Contents

Appendix A: Shogun Tokugawa Tsunayoshi’s Bukkiryō
(Edict on Mourning and Abstention), Genroku 6 (1693)
381

Appendix B: Reference Lists
392

The Imperial Family:
- The Tokugawa-Period Emperors and Sovereign Empresses 392
- The Houses of the Imperial Blood 393
- The Five Regents’ Houses 393
- The Tokugawa Shoguns (including Posthumous Buddhist Names) 393
- The Daimyo Domains and Daimyo Referenced in the Text 394
  - The Mori Daimyo 394
  - The Satake Daimyo 395
  - The Shimazu Daimyo 395

Personal Names 396

Japanese Terms 398

Bibliography 401

Index 421