Tables and Figures

Tables

1.1 The differences between the Old Script and New Script Schools 28
6.1 Wang Anshi’s theory of bureaucracy 137
7.1 The tension between the grand steward and the king 159
8.1 Royal auditions in the Office of Senior Messengers 187
9.1 The products of the five lands 210
9.2 The regional states: Areas and revenues 217
9.3 The three-tier land redistribution system 218
13.1 Social units and military units in the Zhouli 312

Figures

6.1 The king and the six ministries 117
6.2 The king, the grand steward, and the six ministries 122
6.3 Zheng Xuan’s view of the royal domain within the nine provinces 127
6.4 Wang Anshi’s vision of the royal domain vis-à-vis the nine tenures 128
6.5 A close-up of the royal domain 130
8.1 “Nine men forming a well-field” 177
8.2 “Four xian into one du” 178
8.3 The administrative units of the royal domain 181
11.1 Zheng Xuan’s view of the royal domain and the nine tenures 252
11.2 Wang Anshi’s redefinition of the nine domains 253
11.3 Shui Anli’s diagram of Yu’s traces 256
11.4 “The Diagram of the Overseer of Feudatories in the Zhou” 257
11.5 “The Diagram of Mountains and Rivers of the Nine Provinces” 258
11.6 “The Diagram of the Nine Provinces” in the “Ministry of Education” chapter of the Zhouli 259
11.7 Jia Gongyan’s view of the Western Zhou administrative structures 262
12.1 The tai and pi hexagrams 275
12.2 The division of the regional states in the “Ministry of Education” chapter of the Zhouli 281
13.1 Wang Anshi’s local organizations 310
13.2 The social units of the district system in the “Ministry of Education” chapter of the Zhouli 311